

1963

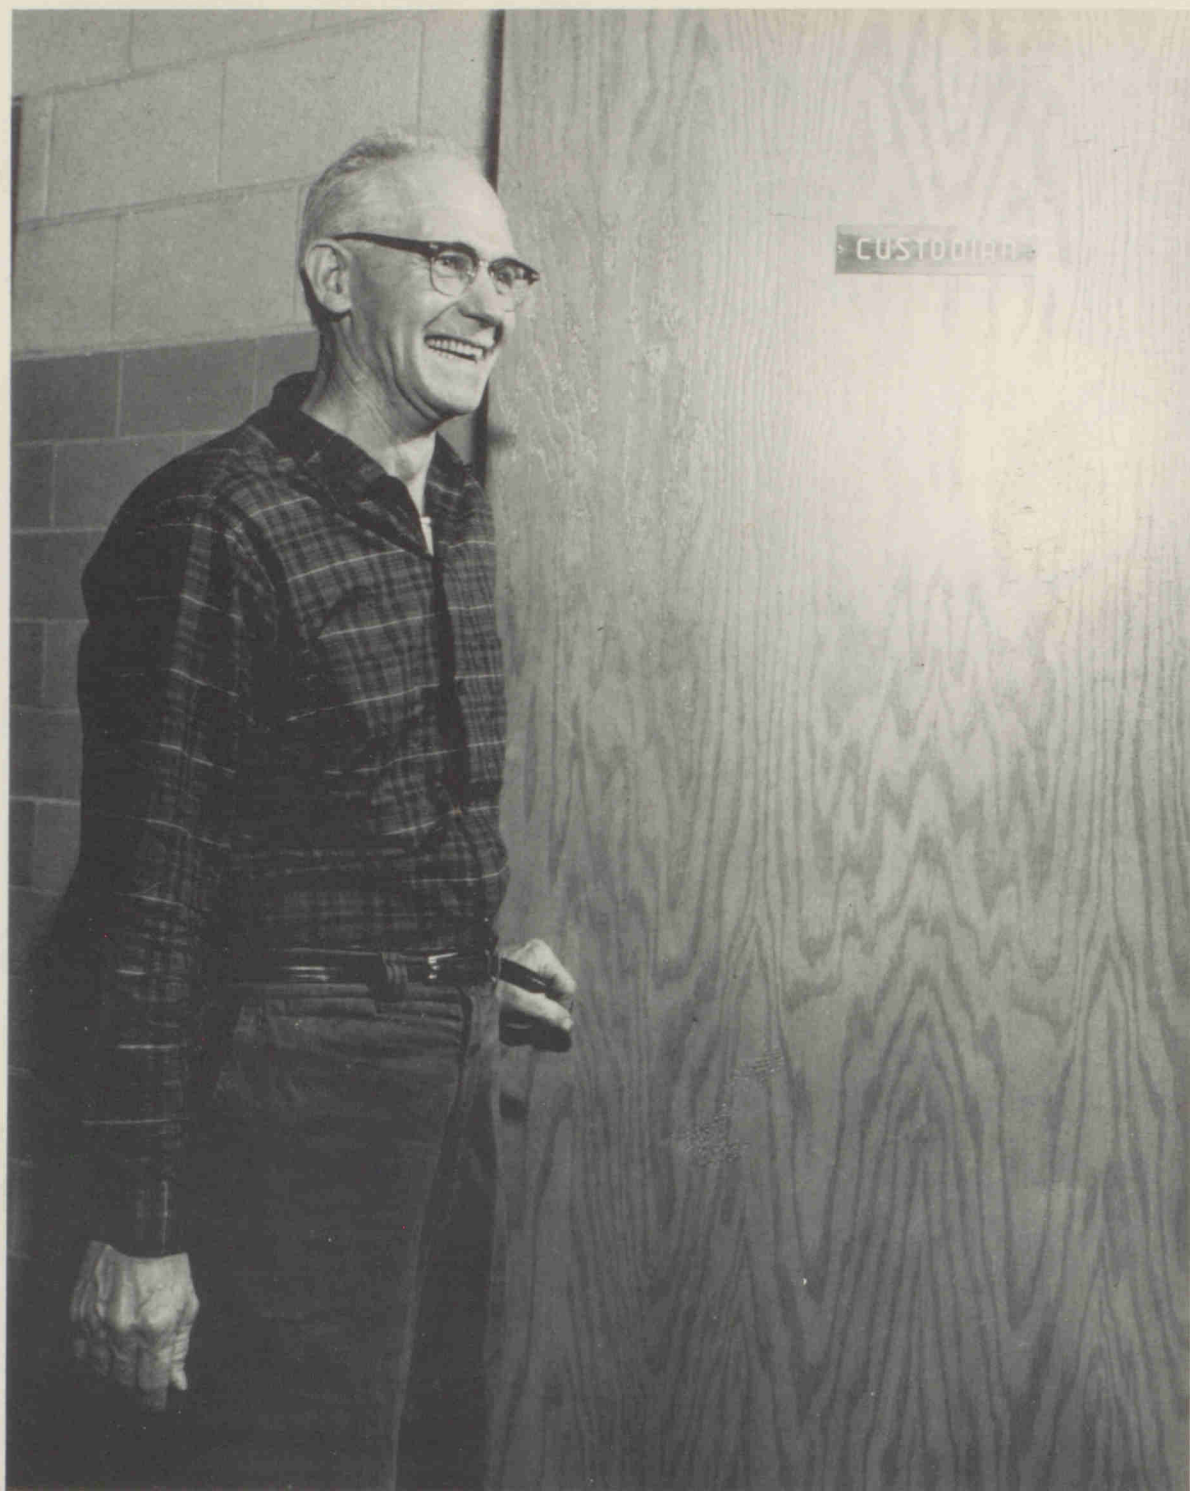

THE EAGLE

We have worked hard to capture the most outstanding and best memories of the past year between the covers of the 1963 EAGLE. We hope we have succeeded in our endeavor. With the sincere hope that each of you will find something special--something you will remember for a long, long time--we are proud to present to you the 1963 EAGLE.

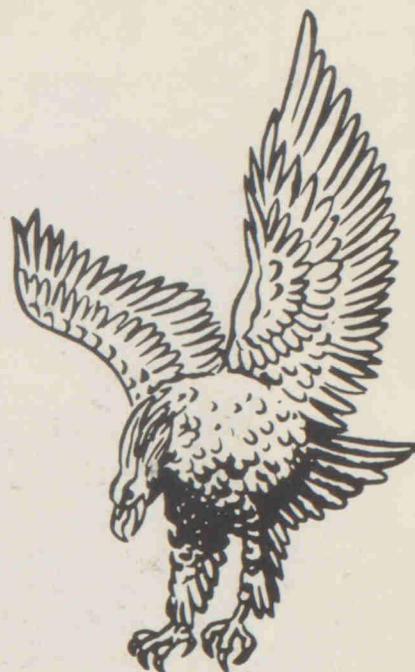

Dedication

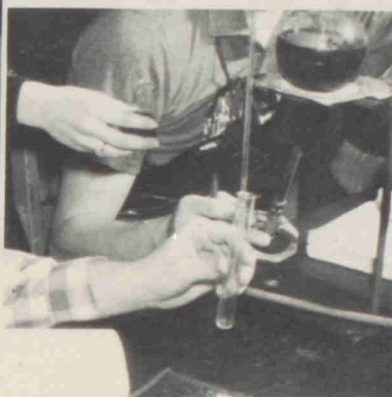

In recognition and appreciation of many years of fine work at D-W, the Senior Class takes pride in dedicating the '63 EAGLE to our custodian, Ted Webb.

Ted, the "man behind the scenes," has served in our school system for nearly seventeen years. He began on May 6, 1946, in the DeLand Grade School, where he worked under nine different principals. When our new high school was built in 1959, Ted became a valuable part of it and remains so today.

For the many things that Ted does for us and our school that many do not realize, we say "THANKS!"

Board of Education

Seems like all school districts have school boards to direct the people who direct the students . . . vicious circle . . . school boards really come across some enormous problems, and they spend many of their free hours in stuffy meeting rooms discussing them. They must keep an eye on their building projects, then worry about how they are going to pay for them . . . many other problems fall on the shoulders of the school board . . . the budget, overcrowded school rooms, the budget, setting school standards, the budget, approving new teachers, and . . . the budget. Again I say . . . vicious circle. Not many people would like to take over the job of having all those problems and making decisions that may influence the lives of everyone within their school district. But the above men do just that and do a good job of it.

Mr. Banks' geometry class (above), composed of twenty sophomores, watches as John Husinga points out the relationship of the diagonals of a square to the size of the square. Much emphasis is placed on logical reasoning in this particular course.

The further study of fundamental laws of algebra is the major purpose of advanced algebra. (Above) Karl Jon Persons is pointing out the relationships of three unknowns to his classmates.

Mathematics

The practical math students, all freshmen, study the basic fundamentals of arithmetic. Here (left) the class listens to Mr. Banks' explanation having to do with the study of the area of a rectangular solid.

Mathematics benefits students in numerous ways. It is a means for developing the uses of common sense and of logical reasoning in solving problems that face us each day. Also, it is used in nearly every occupation. Thus, math is an extremely important subject for all students.

The study of physics has to do with the different forms of energy and the relationships of these forms to matter. The lab work helps the students gain a more thorough understanding of the terms and relationships of physics. In the picture above, the class is working with simple machines as part of its lab work.

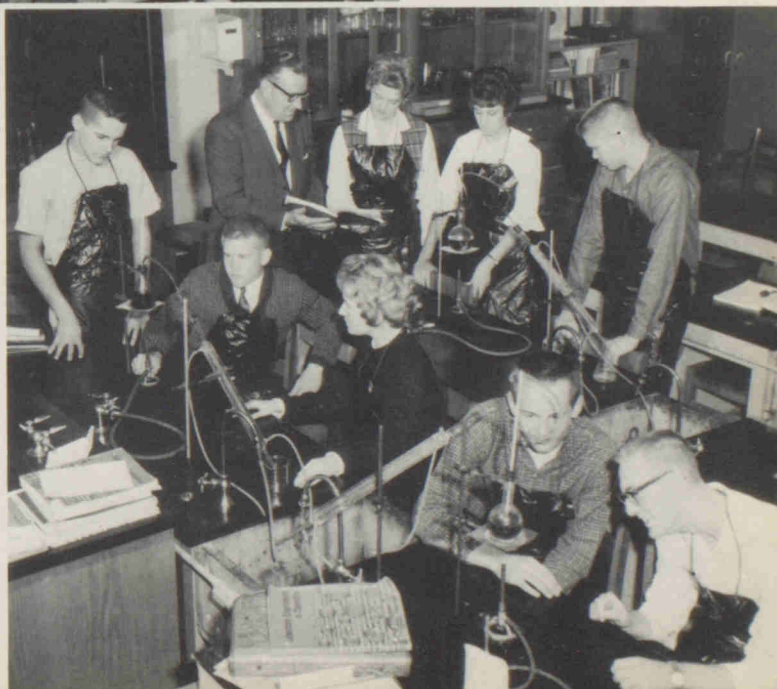

General Science acts as an introduction to and as the basis for the study of the more advanced sciences. In studying general science the students gain a deeper understanding of the life around them.

Science

Forty-one sophomores gained much knowledge of living things through the study of biology. The two classes studied insects, reptiles, the life cycle of man, plant life, and the classification of living forms. Many students found the dissection of the frog to be an unusual but particularly interesting experience.

The goal of the chemistry students was the understanding of the technology of chemical reactions and the application of these reactions to everyday life. All of the science courses helped the students to form a more realistic picture of the ever-changing world of the past, present, and the future and of the importance of the sciences in their everyday lives.

E N G L I S H

The first semester of Senior English was spent in reading literature with major focus on MACBETH by Shakespeare and the CANTERBURY TALES by Chaucer. The second semester found the students writing and revising themes in preparation for college English..

Junior students met a new task--that of writing a term paper. This was done after they had gained a wider and better understanding of English. They read various selections in literature, emphasizing American authors and poets.

A special highlight of the course was the time spent in gaining poise before a group by giving reports and speeches.

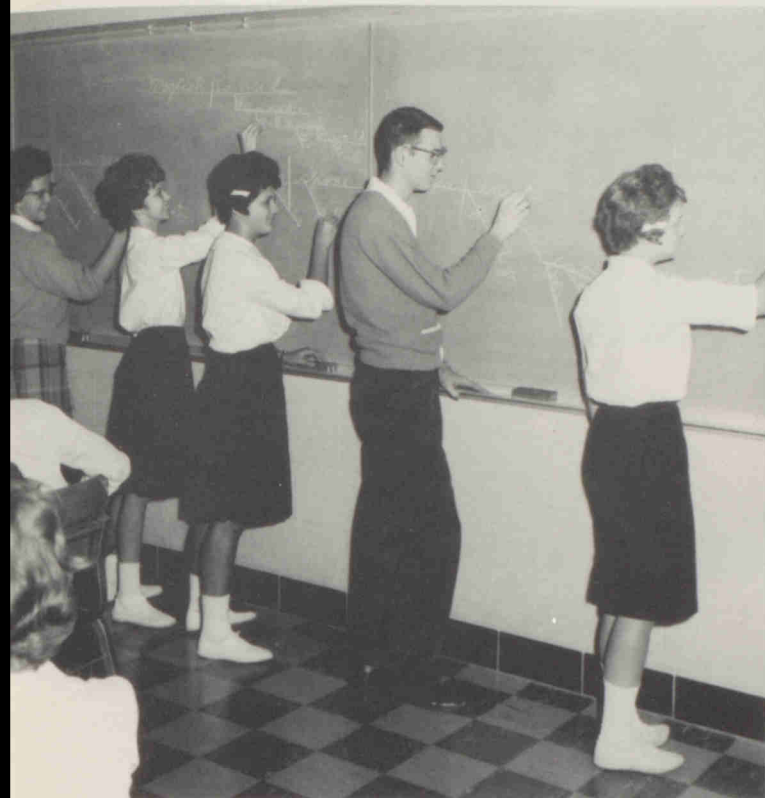

English II students gained more understanding of sentence and paragraph construction through the medium of diagraming sentences. Besides the study of grammar and the writing of some themes, the class spent time in reading literature including short stories and two longer selections, SILAS MARNER and JULIUS CAESAR.

English

Mr. Moody's freshman English class divided its time between grammar and literature. The students worked with book reports and themes. A major project for each student was the writing of a theme entitled "What America Means to Me."

The students who continued their study of French worked a great deal on speaking. The new tape recorder helped the students reach their goal as the recorder enabled them to listen to grammar drills.

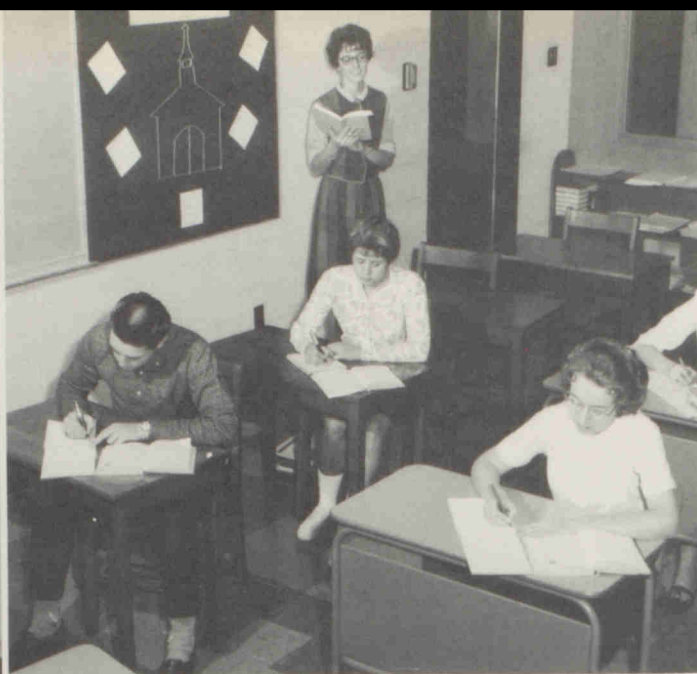

The students in first-year French covered the fundamentals of grammar and the basis of good pronunciation. The class followed the tradition of past French I classes by singing Christmas carols in French at the high school's Christmas assembly.

F R E N C H

Office practice students had an opportunity to "be on the job" by assisting in the routine office tasks in the high school office. Here Nila Meredith performs the duty of duplicating materials.

The bookkeeping students discovered that the overhead projector was very helpful in seeing such items as the worksheet and the bookkeeping cycle.

Business Education

Shorthand students learned that taking dictation from records is a most effective way to build speed in taking dictation.

Typing is beneficial to all students in helping to keep their own personal business records and in typing personal letters and papers.

The American Problems Class studied various social and personal problems and government at local, national and state levels.

Discussion groups analyzed a variety of problems and offered possible solutions. At the right one group discusses problems facing today's teen-agers.

Both the Federal and State constitutions were studied. All this is hoped to create better citizens.

Tracing mankind from the cave to the missile is the task of the world history students. To do this, continual map study and group reports are a must.

Shown below are three U.S. History students presenting their report to the class.

Geography is necessary for a better understanding of World History. At the left, Jill Swartz and Sam Baker point out some strategic locations as Mr. Melton and the rest of the class look on.

Social Science

In United States History, the Juniors learned that an understanding of the world is necessary in order to understand American History. The students studied present and past world conditions and how these conditions are affecting history. This is accomplished partly by map study and current events.

The girls in Home Ec I look over samples of Christmas projects that they may make. Each year the members of the home ec classes make a gift for this season and then present it to some member of their family.

The girls who take home economics learn the fundamentals of sewing and cooking. In addition they learn the correct way to manage homes, to budget their money, to care for children, and to buy intelligently.

Each spring the classes present a style show, and the girls model the garments that they have made in class. Highlights of some of these have been guest models, faculty participation, and outstanding entertainment.

Below are two seniors, Virginia Roy and Lynn Ferguson, as they modeled their garments in the 1963 style show, "I'll See You In My Dreams."

Pictured to the right are the junior and senior girls as they learn one aspect of good home decorating by studying various fabrics for draperies. They also learned the correct way to make curtains and the best ways to cover defects in a window.

The sophomore home ec girls in the picture above are learning about the various and the best cuts of meat. This knowledge will greatly help them later when they must buy meats for their families.

Homemaking

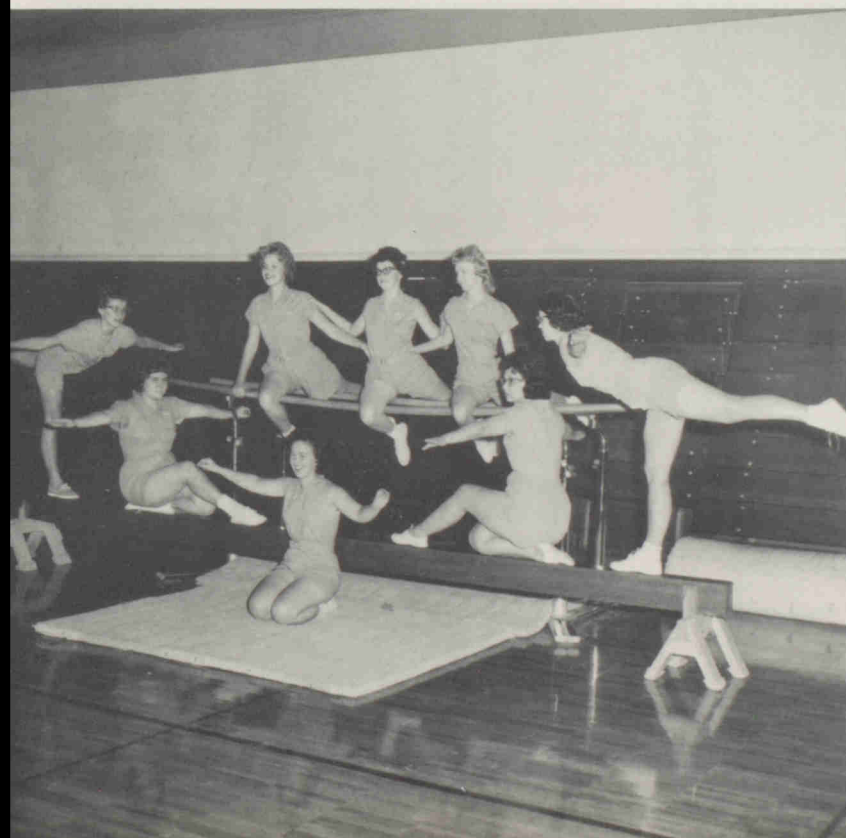

In the picture above some of the fellows in Agriculture I watch as Mr. Gregory explains the procedure in running a soil test for acidity. The 16 Freshmen in this class studied parliamentary procedure, livestock feeding and production and farm mechanics.

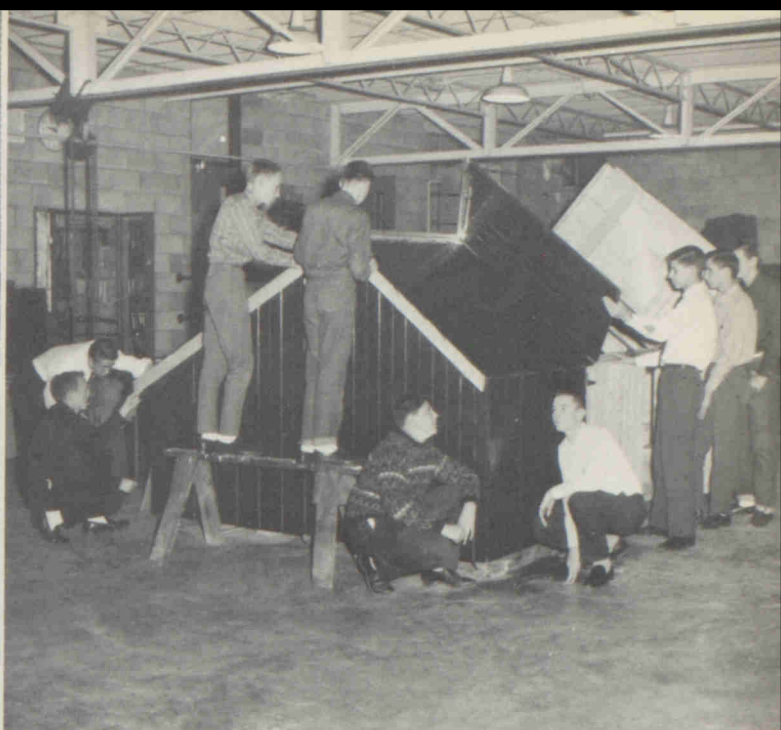

All agricultural classes spent time in both the classroom and in the shop. Thus, the students put their knowledge gained in the classroom to work in the shop. They also had outside field trips and activities and home projects.

Physical Education

The goal of the physical education classes was to build strong, healthy bodies. This was achieved by playing basketball, volleyball, tennis, badminton and archery. Physical fitness tests were also administered.

In the picture at the left, the Senior girls are working on the parallel bars and the balance beam.

Agriculture

Below, some boys are enjoying a swim in the pool. Each student received six weeks of swimming instruction which was incorporated into the regular physical education classes.

Driver Education

The Driver Education program, available to all sophomores, is designed to give the students valuable knowledge in the running and handling of an automobile and the right attitudes necessary for its safe operation. Besides spending time in the classroom, each student received several hours of actual driving experience behind the wheel.

The students in the picture at the left are taking a look at the new Driver Ed car which was purchased this year.

Throughout the year several group guidance sessions were held. Some of the topics discussed were on college choices, understanding teachers, and various types of technical schools. In the picture at the right, the group is learning of the many services offered by the guidance department.

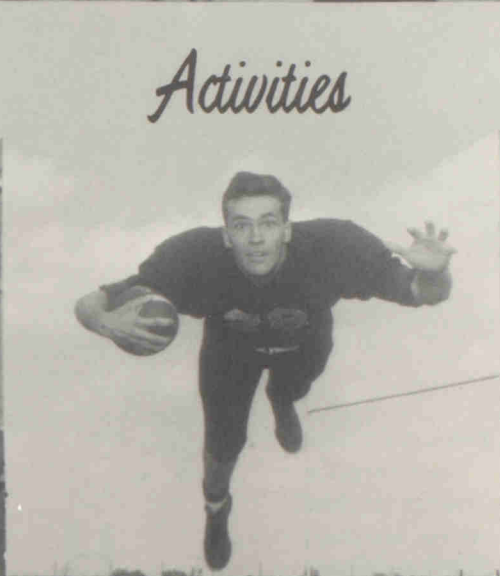

Guidance

Organized last year, the guidance department has become an important part of every student's life. With Mr. Melton, each student can find help for any vocational, educational, or personal problem that he may have.

Individual counseling is also a part of the guidance program. In the picture at the left, Terry Holtz and John Burge talk over a problem with Mr. Melton.

The National Honor Society was founded forty-two years ago by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. The declared purpose of the society is "to create an enthusiasm for Scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render Service, to promote Leadership and to develop Character in the students of America's high school students." A candidate for induction into the society must meet four qualifications. They are: Scholarship, a grade average of 4.25 or above; Leadership; Service and Character.

The National Honor Society in DeLand-Weldon Senior High began in 1962 with the induction of eight members by the Clinton Honor Society. The students were: Sally Benge, Virgil Dasher, Dick Gibson, Janet Jamison, David Player, Karen Reeser, Carolyn Riddle and Jack Swartz. Two of these members, Janet Jamison and Dick Gibson, were held over to this year and conducted the induction ceremonies for the six new members, four Seniors and two Juniors.

HALF-TIME ENTERTAINMENT BY D-W'S MARCHING BAND

PLAY RESUMES; EAGLES RALLY AND WIN!!

The highlight of D-W's first homecoming dance was the crowning of the queen and king. A grand march by the football boys and their escorts began the ceremony. Then came the long-awaited moment--the introduction of the attendants and the announcement of the queen, Kay Nixon, and the king, Kenneth Brock. Following the dance for the royal couple and its attendants, everyone continued to enjoy an evening of dancing to the music of Al Pizzamiglio and his orchestra.

SEATED: Milton Peterson, Patricia Cothorn, Sue Scroggs, Carolyn Burton, Connie Walden, Gordon Wilson, Allyne Remmers, Loretta Kidd. STANDING: Karl Jon Persons, Rondon Weaver, Dick Halcomb, John Baylor, Dennis Hammond, Curtis Gay, Mrs. Winkelmann.

"I don't know what you had to do with this, but you must have done something! Out the door!"

"Oh, Doctor! The world is against us, against us! Yesterday we had roast leg of lamb, candied yams, cranberries -- but what do we have today--?"

"On the contrary, I thought it was quite good. She's trying out for the part of Rosemary, girl crusader."

"If Mother Only Knew"

"Father's old love letters to mother, written during that wonderful, marvelous, glorious time when they were in college!"

"Here, Diana, you hold the little fella." "No! It's not time yet!"

"Albert, why does Jerry rub your head like that?" "She thinks my hair is falling out -- and I like it."

"Who's that honking for you, Jerry? Gabriel?"

"Of course he won't bite, stupid! He doesn't have any teeth!"

Three couples mingle around the water fountain as they look over the decorations.

"Apple Blossom Time" came to DeLand-Weldon Senior High on the evening of Friday, May 17. All those present admired the decorations of pink and white apple blossoms, apple trees, a water fountain, and butterflies in the air.

Sundaes and floats were enjoyed all evening long. Sandwiches, salads, relishes, and desserts were served earlier in the evening in smorgasbord style.

The guests danced to the music of a band from the University of Illinois.

Class of '63

PRACTICE, PRACTICE, PRACTICE!

On Wednesday, May 29, 1963, the graduating seniors filed into the high school gymnasium, eager to begin a new way of life, yet hesitant to leave the old, familiar routine of high school life. It was a perfect evening, with many parents, relatives, and friends present.

Dr. Robert G. Bone, president of ISNU, spoke to the class of '63. John Leischner, president of the local board of education, presented diplomas to the thirty-three graduates.
